The pants (those who write in the seat of their pants) write as a process of discovery or, as Stephen King says, "they put interesting characters in difficult situations and write to know what it happens." Although I am a pants, I can tell you that discovering a new world is much more difficult than to build it before you. Enter too much in writing. In A Game of Thrones, George RR Martin was as far as creating maps. Where does it come from? The construction of the world is how you create that base, where of your story. Like those who are obsessed: Star Wars Star Trek Harry Potter A Game of Thrones The Marvel Halo Universe Everyone approaches world construction in a different way: 1. How do the inhabitants respond to love and loss? Strange creatures? In fact, these worlds can feel as real as the world you live in. Be sure to focus on the five senses, not just seeing and hearing. It can be as complex as a unique place with exotic creatures, rich political stories and even new religions. The characters of the Divergent trilogy do not know what their world was like. How do your characters behave? Real World Fantasy Here you set your story in the world we live in, but your plot is based on a real event (like Outlander) or is one in which historical events happen differently (for example, if Germany had won World War II). The Dark Side, social structure (both slaves and free) and politics (trade wars) play enormous roles. The construction of the world involves something more than the environment. How much of your world do you need to show to support the story? What are natural resources and how do they impact your story? In Cormac McCarthy's A Is The Way, the main characters live in a post-apocalyptic world covered in ash and largely devoid of life. How did they become part of your world (their story)? How are gender roles defined? Banks referred to droids and spacecraft but never explained how they worked. What defines your success and failure? How do the different social classes behave? Can you learn or are people born with it? Which idea for this new world excites you most? In Fantastic Beasts, J.K. Rowling wrote a guide that focuses on how magic works. In The Lord of the Rings, Tolkien gave Frodo a Personality and moral features. Do governments use it to win or maintain power? Are you extraterrestrials, monsters or some new species? Write Fiction that calls attention to two writers will approach the world world same thing. Questions about the construction of the world: "Is it your totalitarian, authoritarian or democratic world? Can you control it? Clarke explained how things worked and why, making it as realistic and factual as possible. "How does it manifest? Examples include: A Game of Thrones The Lord of the Rings Star Wars Discworld Eragon Some novels combine the Real World and the FantasAa of the Second World. (The CrA nicas of Narnia and Alice in Wonderland are also examples of this.) Your job is to take readers on such a compelling journey that they can't help but keep reading to the end. A How do use these technologies in the day to day? A Building GuA World Step 1: Plan but don't overplan The drafters prefer to map everything before they start writing. What resources do you enjoy? "Is there magic of good and evil? Do you need sticks or sticks, etc.? As long as you have a resource that keeps all the rules in one place, it will keep your world (and the rules it lives by) consistent. What and how do celebrate? It doesn't have to be as detailed or as complete as Fantastic Beasts. "Is there conflict between religious groups? Who controls it? be careful not to get so stuck in the construction of the world that it prevents you from writing your story. More than two-thirds of my 200 books are novels, but creating worlds of fiction never seems to be easier. Questions about the construction of the world: "Who have been the principal rulers? Consider: Climate / Environment Resources Geografaa When James Cameron wrote the Avatar film, he created innumerable reference books about the vegetation and climate of Pandora and even the botA What do they use? However, excessive planning also be a problem. How does influence the terrain in your story? Equipment involves technology such as Artificial Intelligence, space or temporary travel, or weaponry In writing his futuristic novels, Iain M. But before... A Need help writing your novel? Step 2: Describe your world Once you have determined your Paint for your reader a world that transports them, allow them to see, smell, hear and touch their surroundings. The construction of the world should not come at the expense of its history. A book like Game of Thrones, a movie like Star Wars or even a videogame as Final Fantasy can make it look like their creators have effortlessly built a fantasy world of nothing. A landscape of another world? In 2001: A Space Odyssey, Arthur C. sees as big as you want, but he remembers: the construction of the world is a serious business. Who drives it? Touch, taste and smell will make your world feel real and familiar, although it is fantasy. A Step 3: Populate your world, are the people, but somehow differently to you and me? Or it could focus on more simple technology such as swords, pistols or horses. What is so powerful? Where are the borders? Do people fear him or hug him, and what makes the difference? If, it is you are an outliner, draw a line in the sand and start writing as soon as it is ready, even if you suspect that more work to do while you go. A do not worry about you. What gods exist? Do this well and become not only in fans, but also in fanatics. 2. What other technologies do people use? World Building Character Questions: What great your population is (that is, what big is your world)? Changes of travel: Policy, religious or technological. What behaviors are they prohibited? The same applies to magic in your story. How are they taken? A new language? The Harry Potter series, for example, is set in the world in which we live but with rules and history alien to us.
